Connecting Worlds, Shaping Futures

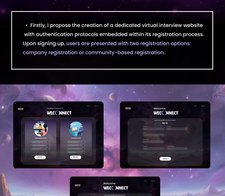
Problem Statement

In today's recruitment landscape, candidates undergo virtual interviews via various online platforms. Ensuring the authenticity of candidates is paramount for companies to identify the best talent accurately without any discrepancies. The challenge lies in developing a system solution that effectively verifies candidate authenticity during virtual interviews, thereby enhancing the reliability and success of the recruitment process

Problem Definition and ANALYSIS

In response to the Challenge of ensuring authenticity in virtual interviews, I've designed a comprehensive, human-centric solution that addresses key communication issues while enhancing security and reliability throughout the recruitment process.

- Firstly, I propose the creation of a dedicated virtual interview website with authentication protocols embedded within its registration process. Upon signing up, users are presented with two registration options: company registration or community-based registration.



- Under the company registration option, companies undergo a thorough registration process, providing detailed company information and completing subscription payments. Our WeCare UX team conducts a review of the submitted information, ensuring authenticity and validity. Upon successful review, companies are provided with an access code to host meetings.
